6.A. Prosecution 2025 Budget Check In

Because City Council shared a directive to have an in-depth review on prosecution cases, budget, and restorative change at the City, prosecutor Glaser presented and shared on what the data for prosecution is at the City of Golden Valley, why diversion planning and restorative justice practices are essential and cost-effective, and how he can support the City. Commissioners and Mayor Harmon discussed the following with Prosecutor Glaser:

Budget, Resource Management, and Staffing

- Budget must support comprehensive services and program sustainability.
- Mental health expansion improves case management and can reduce future costs.
- Fine revenue, legal funds, and county support contribute to covering costs.
- Staffing needs fluctuate with case growth (notably understaffed during COVID years).

Restorative Justice and Diversion Programs

- Restorative practices can include traffic-related interventions, license restoration, and substance use screening.
- Diversion programs for low-level/non-violent offenses reduce recidivism and support rehabilitation.
- Holistic approaches (humanistic, community-centered) improve outcomes.
- Examples from St. Paul show successful grant-supported programs (e.g., expungements, pre-charged diversion).

Data-Driven Decisions and Case Insights

- Presenter Glaser shared traffic and DWI cases are influenced by geography and infrastructure; this informs resource allocation and staff involved.
- Commissioner Boehne shared prior data review (pre-2022) is necessary to understand case growth trends.
- Pre-charged programs and CRMS cases provide faster resolution timelines for those prosecuted.

Community Engagement and Equity

- Chair Cisneros shared the hope is to align prosecution with DEI goals to ensure fair treatment and equitable outcomes.
- Chair Cisneros also shared community input, council guidance, and PEACE Commission values are critical for program design.

Grant and Diversion Planning

- Mayor Harmon shared grants can fund restorative and diversion programs within prosecution, and anyone can apply for them (e.g., law firms, schools).

- Moving towards this and understanding the programs and cost-effectiveness of the programs long-term can help for planning within the City.
- Proactive grant proposal--Kurt has a January submission deadline.

6.B. Expanded Response Update

6.C. Bylaws Review

8.B. Budget Reminder

Staff Chaire-Kobb shared that the Commission has around $5,000 left to spend.

8.C. City Updates

Staff Chaire-Kobb shared about Neighborhood Night Out on August 5th, 2025. Staff Chaire-Kobb noted that it was a success with good turn out and lots of City staff engaged with community members alongside police and/or fire safety staff.
